

Boran Kuzum

BIOGRAPHY

Born in 1992, Boran Kuzum graduated from the Acting Department of Istanbul University State Conservatory. He began his acting career with the TV series 'Mothers and Moms', and gained international recognition for his portrayal of Sultan Mustafa in 'Magnificent Century: Kösem'. Following this, he reached a wide global audience with his portrayal of Leon in the period drama 'Wounded Love'. He started his film career with the movie "Cingöz Recai" and has appeared in productions such as 'Biz Böyleyiz', 'Hazine', 'Mucize Aynalar', and 'Intoxicated By Love'. His leading role and co-production in 'Adresi Olmayan Ev' was screened at national and international film festivals. On digital platforms, he has appeared in Netflix projects such as 'The Protector', 'Doom of Love', and 'Thank You Next', as well as the BluTV original series 'Respect', the Disney+ film 'New Year's Eve' by Gülse Birsal, and the Amazon Prime Video production "Bihter". Kuzum, who also collaborates with global brands, became the face of Levi's for the 150th anniversary celebrations of its iconic 501 model and took on the role of brand ambassador for the Ford Puma in Turkey. As Cartier's first Local Friend of the Maison in Turkey, he attended international events such as the 80th Venice International Film Festival and the 100th anniversary celebration of the Trinity Collection of the brand. Boran Kuzum will soon meet with audiences worldwide with the new Netflix American series Big Mistakes.
